VION THE NEWARK EVENING JOURNAL] AN ADDRESS.

Delivered at the Bloomfield Union Sun-Ly School Jubilee. June 17, 1874 After singings 'The Praise of Jesus' Name," Mr. A. A. Smith, of Brooklyn, was house, session one thousand eight hundred introduced. He said that the scene before and seventy-four, five dollars and seventy-five cents, him was wonderfully beautiful and interesting. He had never witnessed one so good, and no doubt all agreed with him in saying the same thing. . It was a wonder to him how so many gained entrance into the church. He had seen great many gatherings in his life, but this went ahead of them all. The only way he could see how such a large number had assembled in the edifice, was by their training. Yes, that is nineteen dollars and forty-seven cents, the word. This fine commons before us was Item No. 13. To Murphy & Bechtel for used for training purposes, but not for the session of eighteen hundred and seventy four same kind as you have had. It was laid out two hundred and fifty two dollars and twenduring the Revolutionary war as a place for Item No. 14. To Sutphin and Snedecar, for training soldiers. This brought a proposition to the speaker's mind, but before he stated what it was he remarked that undoubtedly every scholar said to him or herself "How good-looking I am to-day!" and that is because we are all good-looking on this occasion. Now to the proposition, which is "This world has to be converted." This is a true saying, but who is going to and assembly, at the usual rates, twenty-five do it? The boys and girls of to-day. This great thought should urge you on to train for a sefulness. The Stally School should be and is a grand training school. When the late rebellion broke out where did all of our prominent officers come from, who led sus on to victory? From West Point and Annapolis, where they were trained to lead our brave boys to victory. It is necessary grossing committee of the senate, as per orwe should have them, and just as great a cents, necessity that our boys and girls should be trained to convert this world. The speak- house of assembly to visit the soldiers' childer spoke of how $5 worth of iron could be turned into horse shoes valued at $10,40; $355 worth of needles; $3,285 worth of for books and blanks furnished to the presiknife blades, and lastly into watch springs session of one thousand eight hundred and which will sell for $250,000. Of course seventy-four, fifty-two dellars and fifty cents, these results cannot be brought about with- stationery furnished to the senate, as per orout a great deal of hammering, rolling and polishing, and yet all these fine qualities five hundred and fiteen dollars and twentyfound in needles, knife blades and in watch | Item No. 24. To George T. Dudley, for springs are in the raw iron itself. Likewise our children can be good, useful and handsome men and women by careful train- forty-three dollars and seventy-five cents, ing. When any little one is in school, and stationery furnished to the secretary of the fails because he or she has to learn a lesson, it must be remembered that all the hard four, eight hundred and forty-six dollars and study is a training for future usefulness. The gentleman did not believe in this training in a bee-line, where you must walk just so, carry your head in one position, etc. They must be training for every position in furnished to the secretary of the senate, seslife. The speaker told a pathetic story enty-four, nine dollars, about a little girl, who, upon hearing a companion speak of placing a bouquet at the foot of Jesus' picture, asked her mother if she could do the same. The parent asked her daughter if she wouldn't rather place her flowers at the feet of Jesus himself.

Francis Butler, lately a well-known dogfancier in New York, died last week from hydrophobia. He received his death wound from a Spitz dog. The Spitz is not only than seventy-five per cent of the people in one of the most ill-tempered and treacherous of the dog family, but he is more liable to become ill in this climate than is any other variety of dog-except, perhaps, the Italian greyhound. The Spitz is a native of the extreme north, and suffers so severely from our hot summers that it is an act of cruelty disagreeable taste in the mouth, coming up to keep him in a latitude for which he is of the food after eating, low spirits &c.
